DESCRIPTION

The first waterfall immerses the user in an interactive experience illustrating the cause-and-effect phenomenon. The second waterfall offers a more active interaction with a waterwheel, where children can block holes to control the flow of water. The third, calmer waterfall allows observation of the water's movement. These elements provide a playful experience while reducing water consumption by 30%. The surrounding structures feature water effects and various games. The Coda set includes a central structure with a mechanism that feeds two of the three water outlets simultaneously, controlled by the rotation of the handle.
